

Co-funded by the European Union

The Learning Age

Intergenerational learning to commit together as citizens of the XXI century

Pilot Test Questionnaire

Co-funded by
the European Union

Purpose of the Survey

Evaluation of the published good practices with adult educators, including youth

Brief Description

The Survey through the Google form was translated into the four languages of the consortium in order to approach educators better and get more comprehensible feedback on the published good practices. The questions have been based on the Project Result 1 objectives:

- Increase and facilitate the resources to educators and organizations and
- Enchantment of the training offer and be more attractive to adults, thus increasing their participation.
- Boost digital competence among adults, consequently ameliorating their participation in social activities.

General outcome of the survey

The survey findings emphasized the numerous benefits of intergenerational learning and provided insights into effective strategies and challenges faced in this context. The results serve as a valuable resource for educators, organizations, and policymakers seeking to enhance intergenerational learning experiences and create meaningful connections across generations. By implementing the identified best practices and addressing the highlighted challenges, intergenerational learning can be further promoted and optimized for the benefit of all participants involved.

Key Findings

- Knowledge exchange
- Enhanced empathy and understanding
- Improved communication skills
- Social connections and community building